Excerpt: .they have not added to the architectural effect, have increased the convenience, of the building. Although of those worshipping in it some can easily remember when it was reared, and can as easily recal the time when with those of a former generation they worshipped in the older one; yet this, too, has about it now that venerableness which a religious use long-continued gives; and, preserved well in the future, as it has been in the past, may it, touched softly by the hand of time, remain yet many years, undefaced, cherished, loved, the house of God and the gate of heaven. As before referred to, in 1840 the Town erected a Hall above which the Episcopal Society constructed an edifice for worship. The renewed ministrations in Harwinton of Rev. Frederick Holcomb, D.D., of Watertown, were contributive to the prosecution of that design. W...
